“ I am very sad to learn of Ernie’s passing. Like many others have shared, Ernie was a true gentleman and a positive influence. I have Ernie to thank for passing my resume to the right person at the right time! I am grateful for his advice and will miss his good (and bad) jokes. Ernie was a humble man - back in 2011, when I asked if we could honor him for his years of Service in the military at an opening ceremony for wounded warriors, he VERY reluctantly agreed. At the end of the ceremony, he said “you know, this was pretty cool” . I will forever be thankful for his solid advice and encouraging words...

“ Ernie WAS IST. He was one of the small group of smart people who created the idea for IST, then turned that idea into bricks and mortar, then led the organization to international acclaim. Like making sausage, it was not always a neat and tidy process. But Ernie's personality helped him sweet talk this one, cajole that one, and get the job done. He was a heroic soldier who rarely spoke of war but always had steel in his spine when he needed it. As befits a great soldier, Ernie kept his people first. He cared for them and took care of them. He always had a sympathetic ear and sound advice.

Ernie was my mentor and best friend at IST for many years. He and Doris were great friends of my wife and I. We still have several of his wood carvings and Doris's art works in our home. His departure leaves a huge hole in his family, with his friends and at IST. God speed, Ernie.

We are currently overseas and will not be able to attend any ceremony. May the love of family and friends help get through this very difficult time. Loved ones always remain in our hearts. Fondly,

“ I was still in college when Ernie approved hiring me as a tech writer at IST. As accomplished as he was, Ernie was easy to approach and easy to work with. I often see Ernie standing in a group of military guys or IST project leaders, everyone laughing, Ernie at the center. I enjoyed seeing his friendship with Brian G.

Ernie struck me as a man's man. And yet, he treated women in the office with respect, including interns like myself. I overheard him once telling someone to stop asking me to type things—that I was a good writer and he didn't want my talent wasted. Ernie didn't know I was in earshot, but his words buoyed me. I have only good memories and respect for him.
