“ Aunt Mary,

You know how much I adored Uncle Adam. What a wonderful couple you were. Our many trips to New York growing up were never complete without bagels from you and Uncle Adam. My love and prayers to you, Kathie and Krissy.

“ Mary, this looks like possibly the Wedding Picture. What a handsome fellow, and I can just picture you as his ever so beautiful bride which you have been throughout the years.

That smile I shall never forget, and I am so pleased to see it for the last time when he focused on you the day I was visiting.

God comfort all of you is my prayer, Mary.##imported-

“ STRENGTH

*In the early days of my grief A tear would well up in my eyes-A lump would form in my throat-But you would not know-I would hide it
FOR I AM STRONG*

In the middle of my grief-I would look ahead and see that wall-That I had attempted to go around-As an ever present reminder of a wall yet unscaled-Yet I did not attempt to scale it-For the strong will survive.

AND I AM STRONG

*In the later days of my grief-I learned to climb over that wall-Step by step-Remembering, crying, grieving-And the tears flowed steadily as I painstakingly went over--The wall was long, but I did make it
FOR I AM STRONG*

*Near the resolution of my grief-A tear will well up in my eyes-A lump will form in my throat-But I will let that tear fall-And you will see it-Through it you will see-That I still hurt and I care
FOR I AM STRONG*

“ Life's chain has been broken leaving all who love you with broken hearts

We look forward to the day the chain becomes a circle and we are all with our loved one's again

Until that day we will live on memories knowing they will always be in our hearts
