Lord, tell everyone I love them and don't forget me for I now have wings to fly.

“Wow, I have so many memories of you Angie, it would be hard to define a favorite memory. I knew you through a great time of our lives....being carefree teenagers. I remember trips to the beach, going to parties, going to prom, hanging out at your house when you lived with your mom and when you lived on your own. I guess one memory I have of you that stays with me forever is how I met you. You were at a party with David Brandani (who sadly passed in a motorcycle accident as well) and Barb wanted to fight you that night. I just remember thinking, I really didn't know you...I had seen you at school, but I couldn't turn and look the other way, so I whisked you up to my apartment so you could wait for a ride home. I remember thinking how you were dressed so neat and preppy and "good" that I didn't think you fit in at that party....and then later on..I met the rest of your family and came to the conclusion that you certainly fit in at that party. While you waited for that ride you talked to me like you had known me forever, even mentioning that you saw me at school often, and by the time you left that night, I knew we would be friends. I wasn't there for every step of your life but I saw you as vivacious happy teenager and then our paths crossed again and you were a mom, still vivacious, but a fun loving young woman with a free spirit and you passed this life as a confident, independent woman, with a free spirit. My memories of you are good ones, even though sometimes at the time they didn't seem like they would make good memories (I just talked to your mom last night about how we had to drive to Georgia to pick you up because your van broke down and we had to use AAA miles part of the way home.....when your van wasn't spraying oil on our car as we drove behind you with blinkers on for the first part of the trip home - that was the first time I ever heard of washing your windshield with coca cola to get the oil off, lol). That was a long trip sister, but looking back now, I cherish the memory. I'm glad that I was able to be a thread in the fabric of your life, meeting you led me down different roads, roads I was grateful to go down. Rest in peace girl. With a name like Angela.....you were already destined to be an Angel.

Death is nothing at all,

*I have only slipped away
into the next room.*

*I am I, and you are you.
Whatever we were to each other,
that we are still.*

*Call me by my old familiar name,
speak to me in the easy way which you have always used to.
Put no difference in your tone,
wear no forced air of solemnity or sorrow.*

*Laugh as we always laughed
at the little jokes we enjoyed together.
Let my name be ever the household word that it always was,
let it be spoken without effect,
without a trace of shadow on it.*

*Life means all that it ever meant.
It is the same as it ever was;
there is unbroken continuity.
Why should I be out of mind
because I am out of sight?
I am waiting for you, for an interval somewhere very near,*

just around the corner.

*All is well.
Nothing is past; nothing is lost
One brief moment and all will be as it was before
How we shall laugh at the trouble of parting when we meet again!*

Love Kelly Cox

“ We went to Murhpy, NC and Deal's Gap for a week in August right after I bought my Street Glide. We rode our bikes all the way up and back. It must have been 100 degrees out. Angie and I rode our own bikes all week ahead of the boys. (they kept back and watched us have fun riding). It was the best vacation ever spent with friends for a whole week. We rode the Dragon, went to Chattanooga, panned for gold, went white water rafting. We cooked Spaghetti Sauce in a crock pot, my idea, Angie was appalled that Italian sauce was made in a crock pot. I also made her cringe when I put celery in the sauce. We still laugh about it to this day.

I was just telling Angie last week that I wanted to go on vacation with her again and ride our bikes. She was hoping that next spring she'd be able to do that. Now, we'll never get that chance to go places together again.

Then the time we stopped in Tifton GA on our way home and Tom took those crash bars out of the pile behind the building and we brought them home for you and put them on your bike. It looked so much cooler after you put them around the engine and not on your back pack. Those were fun times.

Tommy Koscoe and I are going to miss you. We love you. My Dad says hi, and he's sad too.
