“ My favorite memory of my mother is how funny she was. From the time that I was a teenager we (my brothers, my mother and I) would sit at the dining room table and talk. Invariably the conversation turned funny and we would laugh until we cried. As I grew older and our relationship changed, the laughter never stopped. She would make such off the wall comments to get a smile.

My mother was funny. I was blessed to have her. I love you, mom. You are home now.

“ Ann was my grandma. I had many conversations over the phone with her and got to meet her once. I cherish and hold those moments close in my heart. Although she lived on the east coast and I on the west, we did our best to not allow distance to keep us apart. Rest in the arms of Jesus grandma. Someday we will see each other again. Love you and miss you much 💕

“ She was my grandma. She lived on the east coast and me on the west. I was lucky to meet her a couple times and it was so neat to just sit and hear her stories about her life. Thankful for those moments. Rest easy grandma, see you after.
