“ I met Chris in Commonwealth HS in San Juan PR back in 1970. He also lived on the floor above me at the El Monte complex. We shared a common interest in slot car racing and had the same HO track and car setups. We got together a few times in his house to race. He had a nice HO car setup and I brought my cars from when I moved there from New York but my track wasn't working well. Chris' father was doing development in PR working with a parent company that my Dad also worked for. My deepest sympathy to Chris' family and friends.

“ Chris was a “go-getter”. He tackled everything with tenacity and gusto, and he never gave power to the word “no”. His life was testimony to the ability to get undoable things done if you just stuck with it. Millie and I were privileged to be among his long list of friends. We extend our condolences to Melissa, Anthony, Francesca, Lisa and her family.

“ Christopher passed this morning at 12:30am. The love of my life is gone. I feel like he’s still here. It’s so hard to accept he’s truly gone. I thought we were going to be together for the rest of my life, we were together for the rest of his life. 🙏 He was was most loving, passionate dream come true, my soulmate, my best friend, the most intelligent person I’ve ever known, we were bonded as one, he was compassionate, handsome, affectionate, understanding, patient, supportive, he was always positive, charming, first class, he had a incredible aura, he had so much charisma, he was my everything, he gave me more happiness than I ever imagined. He always took the best care of me with a abundance of love, every one that knows him, knows how much he loved me. I love him for all eternity. I’m going to stay strong knowing his spirit is with me. I miss my husband, Christopher Delguidice, my heart is broken. We have 12 beautiful years of happiness and the best memories that I will treasure forever until we are together again. 🙏🙏🙏 I was so lucky to have shared my life with him. I can’t say enough as I’m still processing my loss.

“ Chris was one of a kind. It was always a joy and pleasure to be in his company ,whether it was him generously entertaining or getting down to the last detail of another quality apartment development. I was so fortunate to speak to Chris about a month ago. Even while facing cancer, we laughed and reminisced and happily talked business. He leaves behind a wonderful legacy and will be sorely missed.

Always the competitor, our games and sports intertwined with his charisma and looking to get into good trouble too. “ I grew up with Chris since we were children and neighbors. We were once inseparable like twin brothers. We looked so much alike that people would confuse us for good or bad lol. I must admit we were very mischievous to say the least but very innocent. We've been apart over the years physically but he and his family were always in my heart. Rest In Peace my spiritual brother until we meet again. Mordecai
