“ Patricia Smith posted a condolence I still vividly remember meeting Dennis as a young girl. He came to dinner with an obviously smitten and happy Mary. He joked about our parakeet and menagerie of animals. He was funny and very interested in everyone--especially, I think, my dad. I didn't know then that he would be in our lives for well over forty years. I'm so glad it turned out that way. Dennis raised a warm and close family and sustained a long, loving marriage. I always enjoyed talking to him--especially when we disagreed! I have so many memories of Dennis and my mother in the throes of raucous political battles. I miss that! I hope they've resumed their lively conversations wherever they might be. I hope Andrew can witness a few of those talks. I'm sure he has a lot to add. Dennis was a fortunate man, loved by many.
