“ I think one of my most vivid memories of my mother was when it was just her and I, as it often was in the beginning. Standing by her own organ, and her teaching me how to sing from my diaphragm. She was always encouraging me, never discouraging in this. While she could be a critical person at times, I never doubted that she believed in me and wanted me to achieve what made me happy. While she might have been unsure about a lot of it... she still encouraged.
