“ I will always love you dearly. You were my very first real friend and we will always share the bond even after death. When I think of my childhood I always think about you and the summers we’ve shared or even the bus rides to school. You will always be that beautiful soul I will never forget. I love you Gabby. Always.

“ J lit a candle You were and still continue to be a gem Gabby. One of the most caring people I've ever met in my life. The love she had for her siblings each and every day was heart warming, she would do anything for them. Gabby cared so much about others, and she deserves the same kind of unconditional love back. I can't believe it's almost been a year, it feels so surreal. What I would do to go back in time and relive all of our precious moments where you made me laugh til I cried. We sang together, laughed together, cried so hard together, you were a true best friend. I've always loved you Gabby and I continue to love you every single day. Such a beautiful woman but an even more beautiful soul that will continue to be loved forever I promise. I love u I miss u I wanna hug and kiss u. I want to just be with you and just enjoy each other's presence like we used to. You opened me up to a world full of possibilities.. you showed me what it's like to never give up. I love you and I'm sorry I didn't say it more because you deserve to know. I know you're around, so I'll take this as a moment to say I'll see you soon, never goodbye. I love you

“ meeeee posted a condolence what's up Gabby, I dreamed of you today, it felt real, really real. I miss when you would text me randomly, I miss when you would hype me up when I first started photography/editing. I wish that you were still here, things were so sudden.(which really sucks) It's crazy because we never show the ones we love, we love them until we lose them. I learned more than anything that I really need to slow down,,,Thank you. It sucks because holidays don't feel really the same. I just think of this one Christmas we had together, it was the first time I had seen you in a while and the first time I had felt that happy.You were very bright and cool, in a edgy kind of way lol. I think of you from time to time and i never will forget you “ Cyenne Jenkins posted a condolence Gabby was such talented artist. She drew me a great picture of Amy Winehouse for my birthday. I always remember how easy it was to scare her sitting in living room and one time told her my check engine light came on. And she asked "well did you check the engine" haha she had such a funny personality! I will love and miss her dearly!
