She married Tom, stayed home to raise her two children until they were both in school, and then worked as a legal secretary to help support her family. As a mother, Jeannie taught her children the values of faith, family and life. She lived an unselfish life of devotion to her family, Church, missions and others in need. She fulfilled her dreams of traveling and learning how to ballroom dance. She laughed, sang and danced through life◆s good and bad times and will be dearly missed.
