“ I always called him "Theo" That was his Society of creative Anachronism persona. He was a gentle. kindly man who was generous in spirit and in reality. A wonderful musician, he was creative in so many other ways. He loved to learn . I am going to miss him. Rosemary

“ A kind, gentle soul, the closest thing to a saint that I shall be privileged to meet in this lifetime. A superb musician. It was a pleasure to hear him with a keyboard, whether improvising or playing a classical piece. He had an impish sense of humor and fun, and was a joy to be around. He could get very frustrated with himself at times, and always thought he could do more than he actually could, but he never, ever gave up. I will miss him.
