“ Some of the few, of many, things I think of when I think of my brother-in-law , Jim, are..... a man who knew how to have fun and look at things with the right perspective, a great provider for his family , a great father, a wonderful husband for Jane , a man who knew his sports and knew how to enjoy them , a man who seemed to know the secret to enjoying your profession and job and never seemed to complain about it like so many of us, and a very smart and confident man. What a great example for how to live your life. What a special legacy. You will be missed Jim and always appreciated. Peace.
