“ I met Jim in 2004 when we moved from Texas to Florida. Jim came over and introduced himself and became a very dear friend over the years. He brought us milk after one of the hurricanes which was not an easy item to come by! He fixed our sprinklers, helped paint our house, baked birthday cakes for my kids and even let the moving company borrow his tools. He had a rhubarb pie recipe that is to die for!!! He was truly a self-less person, always putting others ahead of himself. More than anything, Jim had a very strong faith in God which was contagious. He lived a very Christlike life and was an amazing role model and mentor for our family, especially my 3 children. Jim always asked about how everyone was doing. He wanted to get to know our family and was always interested in hearing about everyone's activities. Even after we moved back to Texas, Jim kept in touch and would call about once a month to check in and see how we were doing.

I've never met anyone as compassionate and giving as Jim. My life is better because I knew him. I will miss him greatly!!

“ I am a better husband, father, Christian, son, brother, and friend for knowing Jim. He funded some humanity projects that we made positive concrete results based that his name would not be used. He had and is enjoying his relationship with God on a different level that I could never grasp. We were almost blood brothers but the doctors would not let neither Pat Flogel or I donate a kidney to him because our kids at home were too young the first time he was sick.

Thank you for allowing me to call you 'friend'.
