“ Jason was one of my best friend back at Teague Middle School. We were in lots of classes together and our shared love of metal was our bond. I remember his red Slipknot t-shirt, which was the most daring thing I'd ever seen anyone wear to school. He recorded two Tool songs on a tape, Eulogy and Ænema, and told me if I learned the lyrics, we could perform at the battle of the bands, which was a blast, even though the teachers didn't pick us to play, lol. Jason and I would call each other Big Stoop, as in "How's it going, ya big stoop?" I remember mostly Jason's laughter and his the light in his eyes when he laughed. He was kind to me during those awkward years, and he would always rock out to Blind by KoRn, any time it got played. I'll certainly miss Jason! And I send love to his family.

Mr. Parramoure, thank you so much for taking the time to share this story. It certainly does sound like the Jason I watched grow up and I have thought about your words and Jason many many times during this past year. You captured some very special parts of his personality in this excerpt - his laughter, friendliness and love for heavy metal music. I will think back on this excerpt many times in the years to come. “ Oh my gosh. This is such sad news. Jason was my student in elementary school. He was quiet, witty, and very intelligent. My heart goes out to Iris and his brothers. I am so very sorry.

I pray for peace in all of our hearts.

Jason, I'll never forget the good times we shared together and will cherish those memories forever.
