“ Its has been a month in a half since you left this world beautiful. I miss you every single moment. I am praying for answers and paying for justice, but mostly I pray that you are at peace. You deserve that, after the hell you endured during you short lifetime. I saw a picture of Sadie, my God she is gorgeous and she looks just like you. Trent is growing up and started elementary school last week. You should be here. I am working on making big changes for you. I am going to give it all that I've got. You mean the world to me. We drove to Tennessee a couple of weeks ago and we set you free in a wonderful, beautiful, serene place. One that I know you would have loved. I knew that it was perfect for you and it was very symbolic of your life. I love and miss you so very much sister. Always and forever.

“ Kayla was and is an amazing person. Her heart was filled with joy and compassion and an uncanny ability to make people laugh and smile. Her passion for children and helping any and everyone is second to none. Kayla would always put herself last in order to pay it forward to other people, even if it meant that she would go without. Kayla will truly be missed. I am very blessed to have had the time that i did with here, as this time will be cherished for ever and ever.

“ How do I pick a favorite memory? My sister was so much fun. She made me laugh until I cried and I did the same for her. We shared a love for makeup and we always bonded over my applying makeup. She loved to feel beautiful and I loved any chance I got to make her feel that way. She was so very full of love and light. I loved her with my entire heart and soul. I will carry her memory with me for the rest of days.
