“ I am extremely saddened to learn of the passing of Madan Mohan Arora. He was more than my taxman. Madan was a friend and a mentor who treated me like a son. He guided me through many difficult times, including a mentally taxing fraud case where someone had falsely claimed my son as their dependent.

Madan was always professional, punctual, and deeply dedicated to his work. If you look at the local reviews, he consistently topped the list of trusted and respected tax professionals in the neighborhood. His calm wisdom and deep patience stood out, even as he faced illness.

He often shared stories of his remarkable life, from being a refugee in India during the partition time to his work with the United Nations in various capacities, and how he eventually found his calling helping people with their taxes. He was proud of his children and spoke warmly of their achievements and the responsible adults they had become. He loved his family and life deeply, and always praised God for all the blessings he had received. He was kind, humble, and generous with his time and care for others. The world has lost a true gem of a person.

I express my sincerest and deepest condolences to his family and pray that they find the strength to bear this great loss. May Madan's soul rest in peace.
