“ Malyssa, along with my wife, was one of my best friends in the world. She was my therapist, she was a major pillar in my support system, she was my favorite companion on geekdom, cartoons, and webcomics, and a coworker who made me extremely proud. She is the rare person in the world with whom I found conversation to be natural and easy. She was an analytical mind, always questioning her own and others stances in a constant quest for knowledge and understanding. She was also warm and supportive beyond belief for those she loved. Saying I will miss her does not even begin to cover this loss in words. There is no one like Malyssa Taczli on this planet. We are better for having gotten to know her, but the world is much darker now.

I love you, Malyssa, and I hope you are somewhere and you know that.
