“ I really don't have any words right now. I can't believe you left this earth 2 years ago and I didn't even know. I'm in total disbelief and shocked. I don't even know what happened to you Marlon. I will always cherish our friendship, your kindness and all the good times and some hard times. One thing for sure is that I'm happy I was there for you and you for me when we needed each other. I'll never forget being the shoulder you needed to lean on when Nate passed. You know I knew your pain cause I too lost a sibling unexpectedly. I'll never forget you asking me to go with you to take your physical exam for the fire department cause you said, I was your lucky charm. Well, you didn't pass the test 🤔 (I was still very proud if your resiliency and determination). But more so, you were like oh well, let's go to bush gardens and we sure enough did and had a blast. I will always remember your smile, friendship and your socially awkward self. I'll miss you my friend. I'm sorry we didn't get to say goodbye ☐

Ps. The movie Twilight we watched the whole series together starting in 2009. That will be forever etched in my heart.

love you buddy, I will miss you always ☐ sleep in peace my good, good friend 🙏💔☐

My deepest condolences to the Thompson family. I am so very sorry 💔

“ Marlon, I remember the first time I met you so well. I went into the gas station super late and there you were. You were so funny!! I couldn't get enough of you. 2 weekd later you got me a job with you and boy were we trouble makers. I miss you so much it still hurts. I wish you would have been straight with me. You were and always be the best friend I have ever had. Till we meet again Mar.
