That is my mother, Nancy Midulla, in the blue top and her sister, Frances, at her Goddaughter, Jeanette's annual Christmas eve party. Frances's little great granddaughter, Alyson, is looking at them. Believe this was 2009 or 2010.

I miss you so much, mom. It's been almost three years since you past on to eternity. Nothing is the same, but your ashes and Dad's are mixed together, as you wished. I have pink carnations next to the beautiful box where you both remain.

Your azalea bushes will be blooming soon, I saw the first buds today. Your Christmas cactus plants, just like clockwork, knew it was time to blossom and they did.

I love you and always will...your Joyce

“ You are the GREATEST mother any child could ever be blessed with –

The years have been good to Joyce, Nancy and me for they have kept you here for us and in good health during all our good, bad and struggling times.

You have never given up on me and always supported the pursuit of my destiny.

My passion for life began when I first came into this world and you gave me life.

We, the family celebrate your life for you live on in all of us.
