“ Zulema Miguele - Daughter posted a condolence Dearest Mom, if you could hear me now I would tell you that I celebrate your life with joy and trembling. I was trying to think of a Holy Scripture that most resembles you and quickly my thoughts turned to; "He has told you, O man, what is good; And what does the LORD require of you But to do justice, to love kindness, And to walk humbly with your God." You lived it Mom. I had the opportunity to tell you how you influenced my life and it was to watch you in action as you served our old friend Marie at the Edgebrook address when you would glance out the window and saw that she was attempting to take out the trash and you ran out the house to take the bag of trash from her and complete the task. It was this momentous action that played a big part in my life. Little did you know that God watched silently and took note. You were and will continue to be an inspiration in my life and the life of your children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. I thank God that He lent you to us for the numerous years of your life. God bless you Mom. With my unflinching love, your loving daughter.

“ Lisa - daughter posted a condolence Mami, you were, are and always will be my inspiration. Your smile was a beacon that always said "Come home to me, I will keep you safe." It was the hardest thing to say goodbye but I know that you are smiling brighter than ever in the presence of our Lord and your family. I can still feel you with me. I miss you but I know you are still with me. I can hear your voice. I smell your fragrance as if you just walked by. I know even though you are not here, you still protect us and love us and are just standing a little farther away from us as one would with a child learning to walk. You let them take a step while holding on to your hands. Then, you let them take a few steps with your hands a few inches from theirs. Slowly you let them walk ahead of you so that you can catch them when they fall back. Eventually, they outrun you and fall a few times outside of your reach, but you are always there to pick them up, clean them off, and set them square on their feet to walk again. This is how I see you now, Mami. You are just standing a little further back, letting us walk a little farther ahead, but I know you will still always be there to pick us up when we are down, to comfort us when we are upset, to calm us when we are angry, to brighten our thoughts when we are sad. I will always hear you in the silence and smell you in the breeze. I love you Mami and feel so blessed knowing I had the best mom in the world.

“ Nina Aguilera - Daughter posted a condolence Mamiâ€™s Promise Mami is in heaven now. She is no longer suffering, has no more pains. She went to be with her Lord and Savior, who called her home on Saturday. Mami met up with her mother and father, who were waiting at the pearly gates. She was immediately taken to meet Jesus, you know she could not wait. She put her arms around Him, and kissed him on His beautiful face. Mami then said to Jesus, thank you for saving me and bringing me here. She knew the road was getting tough, when a cure was not to be. She asked Jesus if he would take her hand, and lead her into eternity. Mami spoke with Jesus, as they traveled along the way. She asked for those she left behind, and asked if He would see them safely home on their day. She will be waiting at those pearly gates, when we have finished our race. Mami just wants everyone to know that it is the very best place. So if you still have your mother, please cherish her with care. Because it only really hits you, when you turn and she is not there.
