

Nelson A. VanArdoy

April 4, 2009

Quality of Life. That's what Nelson was, to those that truly knew him, he was the greatest quality to a persons life. He left behind a legacy of reaching out to others and extending a helping hand. He was essentially forgiving and eternally loving. He could be a thousand miles away and still touch your heart. His greatest strength was being there for others. Though the help he offered was not always what you wanted, it was the help you really needed. You had conversations with him that you couldn't have with anyone else. He exposed a kind of genius of himself that only the like minded of brilliance could truly understand. A Jack of all trades, he could fix all but himself.

"Its all Good", Nelson VanArdoy
