“Daddy, this poem is perfect for you. Christmas is almost here. I'll light a candle for you.

Would I Do It All Over Again?

by

Brenda Race

*In a heartbeat I would do it again
Nothing can take away from me what I did then
I did the best that I could....I gave it my all
And now I can hold up my headand forever stand TALL*

*I couldn't, I wouldn't change what I did for YOU
It was done out of LOVE not out of some due!
If you had stayed here for a thousand years
It would have been worth all of the tears*

*You taught me lessons throughout my life
Ones I used when you were going through the strife
You showed me well the meaning of LOVE
Unconditional LOVE which came from above*

*You raised me with your love and let me fly free and then I returned when you needed me
You continued to teach me when you weren't even aware
That the greatest lessons you were yet to share*

For in your dying you gave to me a compassion that I alone never would see had I not taken you under my care giving it my all with nothing to spare

*Would I do it all over again or would I flee
I would not, could not change it you see*

*To LOVE you and comfort you in your time of need
Was not a great task...I was only returning the seed*

*The seed you planted as you guided me along
Back in the days when YOU were strong!
It was only natural to return the LOVE
Not a chore but an honor imparted by the one above!*

“ Affectionately known as "Papaw" he was truly the example of more blessed to give than to receive. The time I knew him he was always giving. You were made more than welcome in his home. He treated my daughter like his very own grand-daughter and she loved him like he was her grandfather. He saw to it that his children had a profession and he tried to help his siblings to set up in their businesses. His life was a life of giving. As he put it, "it did his heart good". He will be greatly missed by all who knew him as my grand-daughter still talks about "Papaw".

Connie, he was a sweet, generous, loving man. He thought the world of you and David, as do I. You gave him his last couple of haircuts and he looked wonderful. Dad was never a man who wanted to look unkempt! By the way, he loved your chicken and dumplings. He loved Tammy so much and was so happy when his "little sweet thing", Natalie, came along. I have some videos, I'll try to post of the 2 of them when I can. Thank you for everything, Love you, Rebecca “ Though I only knew Mr. Brasfield for a short time, I knew of him for well over half a lifetime. Everything that I knew about him paled in comparison to the man that he really was. Mr. Brasfield was what all good men want to be in life, he is the man that I aspire to become when I grow up, and god willing, I will grow to be at least half the man he was.

You will forever be in my thoughts Papaw.

*Dear Rebecca and Family,
Any man can be a Dad, but it takes a special man to be a Father. Your Father has left a great legacy with his beautiful daughter and her children. His memory will shine through you!

Rhonda, I'll never forget S&S. Bruce wanted to know if I wanted him to take me there when we were there for Dad's service. I don't think I can ever go there again. By the way, do you remember that's where we first met?
