“ Ron was a colleague and close friend of my husband, both physicists. He became a dear friend of our entire family. He spent weekends with us and some holidays. He was beloved by all. When extended family would visit someone would always ask what Ron was up to. I only recently learned of his death. He was brilliant, kind & simply a wonderful person. After many long discussions with him after "he" cooked dinner for us at our home, a couple of things he said remain with me:

#1 There is no such thing as a stupid question.
#2 Education does not always automatically equal intelligence.

Grateful that he crossed paths with our family way back when we lived in Northern California. He is missed by all that were fortunate enough to meet him. I hope he and my husband are in deep discussions in a far away place about things yet too complex for the rest of us to worry about.

Rest In Peace. Valerie Meldner

“ I just learned about Ron's passing the other day - so sad. I worked with Ron at Oracle back in the 90's. For a few years in California, we had lots of fascinating discussions on health and meta-physics, as well as physics. I lost touch after moving to New York and meant to try to get back in touch, but that will have to wait until we all go to the better place. To Ron's family - please accept my sincerest condolences.

“ I don't know what to say Dr. Ron. I finally moved back to Longwood from Belize and was looking forward to meeting you for lunch and hearing you speak about your work and ideas. When I couldn't reach you by phone or email I tried your website before I Googled your name. I don't know who took over your company but it will never be the same. I'm honored to have known you - such a sweet and gentle genius, a true gentleman with so much caring and empathy for others. Thank you for always wanting to help. Your never wavering joy and enthusiasm always amazed me - not to mention your vast knowledge on science and nutrition. I could listen to you for hours. You were one of a kind when you walked this earth, and you left it far too soon dear one. My deepest condolences to your family.

“ I just came to know that Ron passed away. I was just trying to call him and both numbers were not working. So i started getting worried and googled his name, which led me to this funeral home obituary page.

Ron is a great scientist with strong passion for health care technologies. Would like to get in touch with valerie and somebody in the family.

Ron, have a great time on the other side...

“ I was just thinking of Ron today and hoped to contact him. I am so sad to see that I've missed him by just a few months. He was an inspiration to me, and I was fascinated by his ideas and his experience. Totally agree with Valerie's memories and tribute.

“ Yes, patient, a true teacher, like my father, and his other younger brother too! when I think about Yvon (his "Canadian" first name :o), these words come to mind: revolutionary vision on the world, on nutrition, on human health, a true scientific to the service of humans, with a deep hearth, joyful, optimistic & enthusiast, dynamic, funny, friendly, innovative, creative intelligent, kind, smily, perseverant (like my father!), somebody I love dearly.

Thank you for having been in my life, I am forever grateful for all you've brought to me, and you'll always, dear Ron Cusson, stay alive in my memory.

*Your niece,
Valérie*
