“ Sylvia G. Buck - research friend; she visited me in May 2008 posted a condolence Sue and I have been emailing one another for just about a year now while she researched Nathan Richardson who married a woman from my town. We became friends and I was delighted to meet her in person when she came to Massachusetts in May this year to continue her research. We used to write at least once a week, so I became concerned when I didn't hear from her. I was shocked to learn of her untimely death. She was a lovely woman who I enjoyed knowing. I would like to get in touch with the aunt that she lived with a few years ago. Please write me at or Warren Public Library, 934 Main St., Warren, MA 01083-0937. Sylvia G. Buck.

“ Travis Sherman - friend & coworker posted a condolence She was always doing something interesting and different and sometimes a little weird. She was always ready to listen to what I was doing that was interesting and different and sometimes a little weird. She was ready to laugh, to eat cookies, to read cozy murder mysteries, and ride trains. I still can't believe it.

“ Jane Johnson - Co-worker posted a condolence I admire Sue for her varied and many interests. We shared the love of trains and genealogy. She was planning to help me with my family tree when I retire in a few years. She always had a smile for me and a quick wit. I wish I could have heard her play the piano. We will greatly miss her at SPC.

“ Cathy Drooger - Friend & Co-Worker posted a condolence Sue was a co-worker but she was also my friend. We had many conversations about our love for classical music. I changed jobs a year ago and didn't see as much of her but the last time I saw her we fell right back into talking about music. I will miss her.

“ Kristina Kihlberg - Toastmaster posted a condolence I've met Sue a few times and the one thing that struck me immediately was her great sense of humor. You may have to listen closely to hear her, but it was there. She was a wealth of knowledge and I understand that her speaking skills were just about to take her to "new exciting places". Sue, thank you for sharing time with me.

“ Ann Louise Wikoff - Archivist, St. Petersburg Museum of History posted a condolence It is with shock and numbness that I write this. Sue was my first volunteer when I came to the Museum about nine years ago. She had just come to Florida and was looking for something to do outside her father's home. She came in each Wednesday afternoon and worked on the assortment of sheet music we own, sorting, classifying, organizing and preserving it for researchers to use. She started back to school during this period and then joined St. Petersburg College on a full time basis. She continued to work as a volunteer with us when she had a free moment. Her last project, still in progress, is the railroad collection which we own. We will miss her knowledge, sence of humor, love of life. On behalf of the rest of the volunteers who knew her, please accept our prayers for your comfort, knowing full well she is enjoying the fruits of her labor.

“ Sue Shuman - friend posted a condolence Long after we ceased to work at the Health Education Center, where we met and began our friendship, Sue was an integral part of our "reunion" group dinners. It is awful to realize that she will no longer join us there. We shall raise a glass (white wine was her choice) to her spirit. We'll all miss her.

“ Emmett Clary - Toastmaster posted a condolence I am crushed by the loss of Sue. I felt she was a soul mate to me because of our mutual love of trains and railroading. I have a series of train pictures on my wall which I put up after seeing the same at her condo at her 60th birthday party. I will always think of her whenever I admire those pictures. I already miss her very much. Emmett Clary

“ Suzy Balasis - Co-worker and friend posted a condolence Sue was such a joy to work with, but it was the leisure activities that I enjoyed the most. She and my husband were both train "nuts" and enjoyed discussing them. She helped me discover the fascination of searching for my roots through her genealogy classes. I will miss her quiet ways and subtle sense of humor, and will always treasure my memories of her.
